Terrazzo Long in Use

Terrazzo was old before this country was discovered. It was known to and used extensively by the early Venetians, and many patterns designed by them are copied. Not only is terrazzo used as a flooring, but it also is employed in a number of other ways in construction.

Consecration

Consecration is not wrapping one's self in a holy web in the sanctuary; it is going into the world and using every power for God's glory. —Henry Ward Beecher.

Vera Personal Items

General and Poet

In the early days of its existence the Spartans, being badly in need of a general, sent to Athens for one. The Athenians, not wishing to give them too good a one, sent them a gouty schoolmaster, one Tyrtaeus, as being the most unlikely person on earth for the task. But Tyrtaeus was a poet and by his poetry, which took a martial turn, he so animated his new countrymen that he turned out a good general after all.

Making Wallpaper in Rolls

Paper in continuous rolls was invented by Nicholas Louis Robert of Essones, in 1799, and the English patents "to make paper without seam or join" were obtained in London in 1801 by John Gamble and Didot St. Leger. The use of paper in continuous lengths was not, however, permitted in England before 1830, because of the important revenue derived from the tax stamps on the small sheets. France, meanwhile, made use of the new invention after 1810.

Types of Mahogany

Mahogany is of three distinct types. West Indian mahogany is the hardest, heaviest and most closely grained. It also has the richest and darkest natural coloring. Honduras mahogany is not so rich in color or of as close grain. The third variety is African wood, the lighter in color and weight than the others and is singularly free from defects.

Removing the Pain of Want

He who understands the limits of life knows how easy it is to procure enough to remove the pain of want and make the whole of life complete and perfect. Hence he has no longer any need of things which are to be won only by labor and conflict.—Epicurus.

Bilateral, Multilateral Treaty

In its simplest terms a bilateral treaty is an agreement or contract between two governments with respect to certain matters of mutual interest. A multilateral treaty is one that has been signed and ratified as between three or more governments and deals with matters of more or less common interest to all of them.

Heat Relief in Farm Kitchen Provided by Electric Roaster

No wonder he smiles in anticipation. Just look at that roaster dinner!

By IRA MILLER
Rural Electrification Bureau

THE electric range, with its almost unlimited capacity, is the ideal solution to the "hot kitchen" problem. And it is slowly but surely coming into general use on the thousands of electrified farms of this country. At the moment, however, coal, wood and, to a lesser extent, kerosene stoves still are the rule in the majority of farm kitchens. And, as any farm wife will agree, nothing on this earth can be so hot as such stoves on a hot day.

Within the past few years, an appliance — the electric roaster — has made its appearance which, as an additional means of heat relief to those farm wives who have high-line service in their homes. Although the electric roaster will do perfectly every job that comes within its size, it must not be assumed that it will entirely replace the range. But, by doing the heavy baking and cooking with the regular stove early in the morning of a hot day, and with a little careful planning, it is possible to complete the day's cooking, in comfort, with the roaster.

Because it has more than a hundred uses—from baking bread to canning fruit—the electric roaster actually is guaranteed. Rather, it really should be called a portable oven for the largest size will accommodate a 20-pound roast, a 15-pound turkey or enough meat and vegetables for six or seven persons. And, in addition, it is provided with insert pans, baking rack, broiling attachment and automatic heat control.

The price of the average popular-size electric roaster (holding over 13 quarts) varies from $20.00 to $25.00. Actual tests conducted over a 30-day period show that it consumes one kw.-hr. for each full dinner cooked. At the five-cent rate, this represents a little over one cent per person for the average family of four members. In the savings on fuel and because of reduced meat shrinkage, an electric roaster will pay for itself in a year. And this makes no allowance for its comfort and convenience which, to the harassed farm wife, is beyond price—especially during the hot days of summer and fall when long hours in the kitchen are necessary to prepare dinner and supper for the family, and frequently during harvest, for extra hands.

July 26th, 1939

Just another day to most people . . . but to us, Wednesday, July 26th, 1939, was a memorable one.

On this day electric service was connected in the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Moomau of Waynesboro, Virginia.

It is true that we connect service to new customers every day, but Mr. and Mrs. Moomau happened to be our 100,000th customer.

This is an outstanding milestone in the Company's history of public service.

In 1928 the Company connected its 50,000th customer. Since that time the electrical industry has developed improvements in generation and service that have made electricity available to more people at a great reduction in cost.

The 1,250 employees of the Company who have an average length of service of eleven years, join the management in thanking all of the 100,000 customers for their patronage and cooperation.
